

1
2
3
4
5
6
7 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
8 WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
9 AT SEATTLE

10 WESTRIDGE TOWNHOMES OWNERS
11 ASSOCIATION,

12 Plaintiff,

13 v.

14 GREAT AMERICAN ASSURANCE
15 COMPANY, a foreign insurance company, as 16 successor to AGRICULTURAL
17 INSURANCE COMPANY; GREENWICH
18 INSURANCE COMPANY, a foreign
19 insurance company,

20 Defendants.

Case No. C16-1011RSM

ORDER DENYING MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION

21 This matter comes before the Court on Defendants Great American Assurance
22 Company (“Great American”) and Greenwich Insurance Company (“Greenwich”)’s Motion for 23 Reconsideration. Dkt. #65. Plaintiff Westridge Townhomes Owners Association (“the 24 Association”) opposes the Motion. Dkt #73.

25 Defendants request that the Court reconsider a certain portion of its “Order Granting in 26 Part and Denying in Part Plaintiff’s Motion for Partial Summary Judgment and Denying 27 Defendants’ Motion to Continue,” Dkt. #63. Specifically, “part C.1. of the ruling found on 28 pages 5 and 6 of Dkt. 63 dealing with the applicability of exclusions in the defendants’ policies

1 to ‘faulty construction,’ ‘faulty maintenance’ and ‘wet or dry rot.’” Dkt. #65 at 1. Defendants
2 first argue that of the Court’s ruling in that portion “has no clear application” because the Court
3 did not define “faulty workmanship” or “faulty construction,” or “explain how the two terms
4 relate to one another.” Id. at 1–2. Defendants argue that “it is unclear what the parties should
5 do with [the Order]” and ask “[h]ow do we know whether something is faulty construction or 6 faulty workmanship?” Id. at 2. Defendants next argue that the Court misunderstood cited
7 portions of City of Oak Harbor v. St. Paul Mercury Ins. Co., 139 Wn. App. 68, 74–75, 159 P.3d
8 422, 425 (2007), specifically arguing that faulty construction must be a subset of faulty
9 workmanship. Id. at 2–3.<sup>1</sup> Defendants go on to argue that “The Court’s ruling essentially 10 denies that different words could describe the same thing or be used interchangeably to 11 describe the same thing... [and] ignores the difference between general, abstract words and 12 concrete, specific words.” Id. at 4. Defendants argue that “Washington courts have long
13 recognized that different words within the same insurance policy can have similar meanings
14 and that the availability of a more concrete and specific wording to describe particular claims
15 facts does not prevent the application of general, abstract exclusions.” Id. at 5 (citing Queen
16 City Farms, Inc. v. Cent. Nat. Ins. Co. of Omaha, 126 Wn.2d 50, 82, 882 P.2d 703, 721 (1994)
17 and State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. English Cove Ass’n, Inc., 121 Wn. App. 358, 367, 88 P.3d
18 986, 991 (2004)). Finally, Defendants argue that the Court should not have considered Great 19 American and Greenwich policies issued to other insureds that contain exclusions of “faulty
20 construction,” “faulty maintenance,” and “wet or dry rot,” the exclusions missing in the Policy
21 in this case. Id. Defendants argue that the Court failed to consider evidence in the light most 22 favorable to Defendants as the non-moving parties.
23
24
25
26
27

28 <sup>1</sup> To illustrate this concept, Defendants include a Venn diagram with a circle for “Faulty Construction” contained entirely within a circle for “Faulty Workmahsip” [sic]. Dkt. #65 at 3.

1 In Response, the Association first argues that the Court’s ruling has a clear application
2 because “what the insurance policy covers is a question to be resolved before the jury decides
3 causation.” Dkt. #73 at 2 (citing Vision One, LLC v. Philadelphia Indem. Ins. Co., 241 P.3d
4 429, 435 (Wash. Ct. App. 2010), rev’d on other grounds, 276 P.3d 300 (Wash. 2012);
5 Sunbreaker Condominium Ass’n v. Travelers Ins. Co., 901 P.2d 1079, 1082 (Wash. Ct. App.
6 1995)). The Association next argues that the Court’s citation to City of Oak Harbor was 7 accurate and applied to this case correctly, and that Defendants’ arguments are simply 8 reiterations of what was argued previously with a “banana” and “fruit” analogy. Id. at 3–4.
9 The Association states that it requested a ruling on “what the Policy covers” and therefore “did
10 not require the Court to apply any facts to the exclusions, and accordingly, there was nothing to 11 ‘misapply.’” Id. at 3. The Association argues its interpretation of the relationship between 12 faulty construction and faulty workmanship is reasonable, and that “[w]hen a policy term—
13 especially an exclusion—is subject to more than one reasonable interpretation, it is ambiguous
14 and will be given the interpretation most favorable to the policyholder.” Id. at 4 (citing Kaplan
15 v. N.W. Mut. Life Ins. Co., 65 P.3d 16, 23 (Wash. Ct. App. 2003); Queen City Farms, 126
16 Wn.2d at 83). The Association argues that abstract words are not appropriate for exclusions in 17 insurance contracts under Washington law. Id. at 5. The Association argues that the Court’s
18 reliance on evidence of other policies issued by Defendants was proper. Id. at 6–7.

19
20
21
22 “Motions for reconsideration are disfavored.” LCR 7(h)(1). “The court will ordinarily
23 deny such motions in the absence of a showing of manifest error in the prior ruling or a
24 showing of new facts or legal authority which could not have been brought to its attention
25 earlier with reasonable diligence.” Id.
26
27
28

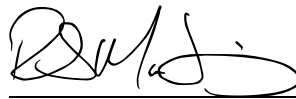

1       The Court's Order stressed what it was and was not ruling on. Dkt. #63 at 6 ("The
2 Court agrees with the Association that because the Policy does not explicitly exclude 'faulty
3 construction,' 'faulty maintenance,' or 'wet or dry rot,' these perils are covered, pursuant to the
4 other terms of the Policy. . . . the Court wishes to be clear that it is not able to rule at this stage
5 whether the damage to the condominium falls under a covered or excluded peril.")).
6 Interpreting the insurance contract is a question of law appropriate for consideration on a
7 motion for partial summary judgment. See Overton v. Consol. Ins. Co., 145 Wn.2d 417, 424,
8 38 P.3d 322 (2002). Given the nature of the Association's Motion, it is to be expected that the 9 parties would be left with remaining questions. It will be up to the parties to decide how best to 10 proceed with those remaining questions in this case. It is not the Court's typical practice to 11 rule on insurance coverage in such a piecemeal fashion. However, the issue of "how do we 12 know whether something is faulty construction or faulty workmanship" was not before the 13 Court, and it was not manifest error for the Court to leave the parties with a ruling in the 14 abstract.

15
16
17       The Court next finds that Defendants have failed to show manifest error in the Court's 18 application of City of Oak Harbor or its ruling that faulty construction is not excluded by the 19 Policy's exclusion of faulty workmanship. Defendants fail to cite any new authority which 20 could not have been brought to the Court's attention earlier, and generally reiterate prior 21 arguments on this point. Defendants fail to convince the Court that its reliance on evidence that
22 these Defendants use the term faulty construction in other policies was somehow inapplicable,
23 or that the Court could have negated this evidence by interpreting this evidence in a different
24 light. The Court agrees with the Association that exclusionary clauses are to be construed
25 strictly against the insurer. Eurick v. Pemco Ins. Co., 108 Wn.2d 338, 340, 738 P.2d 251, 252
26
27
28

1 (1987) (citing Farmers Ins. Co. v. Clure, 41 Wn. App. 212, 215, 702 P.2d 1247 (1985)). Given
2 all of the above, the Court will deny the instant Motion.

3 Having reviewed the relevant briefing and the remainder of the record, the Court hereby
4 finds and ORDERS that Defendants' Motion for Reconsideration, Dkt. #65, is DENIED.
5

6
7 DATED this 28 day of November, 2017.
8

9
10

11 RICARDO S. MARTINEZ
12 CHIEF UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28